"Lost & Found helped me to move along from one phase to the next. They helped me understand how to grieve."
— Courtney Wampler

Suicide Adds Additional Challenges to Grieving Families

If you ask Courtney Wampler, 15, when her Dad died, she has to pause a minute before remembering it was November 2008. Two years have passed since the Glendale High School student found out she had become part of an unwelcome trend; a child impacted by rising suicide rates, a daughter overwhelmed by the sudden loss of a parent.

"It's very different losing someone to suicide," Wampler said. "It gets dumped on you. Nobody knows what to say. It tears you apart and then you have to learn how to come together in a whole new way. You end up a totally new person."

According to Greene County Sheriff Jim Arnott, the Greene County Sheriff's Office is now responding to roughly one suicide call a day. Whatever circumstances are to blame for the rising trend, one thing is certain—support is needed for those left behind.

Right after her father's death was the hardest for Courtney. She remembers the first year as a complete blank.

"I was in a totally different world," Wampler said. "Friends would be like, it's been two weeks; she should be over it. It's been two months; she should be over it."

"I could talk to my Mom about some things, but some things I would hold back because I didn't want her to hurt like I did. I didn't want her to worry about me."

Courtney found a safe place to discuss her feelings and concerns at Lost & Found Grief Center. Referred to the organization by various family members, she joined a support group of kids who had all lost a parent. "Some of them haven't experienced suicide but we all lost someone. So even if we aren't in the exact same boat, it's like they are still right next to us," she said.

To help others find the same support Courtney Wampler experienced, please consider making a donation to Lost & Found. Thanks to the generosity of a matching donation, each dollar you give up to $25,000 from now until December 31st, will be doubled.

Lost & Found provides free grief support services in a safe and supportive environment for children, young adults, and their families, grieving the death of a loved one.

Special Thanks to Our Champions
